

Abstract - Experiences with an English taught semester in Medicine at the University of Oslo

Since spring 2002, the 9th semester (Pediatrics and Gynecology&Obstetrics,20 weeks) of the medical study at the University of Oslo has been taught in English, mainly in order to attract more exchange students. All plenary teaching is given English, while small group teaching is conducted in either English or Norwegian, depending on the constitution of the group. In 2004, this English taught semester was subject to a comprehensive evaluation by a research group at the Faculty of Education, U. of Oslo, focusing on pedagogical aspects. The paper/presentation intends to present the results of this evaluation, as well as other experiences related to the semester.
